

HOMETOWN HERO:

Wendy Scarborough

“Wendy’s dedication and commitment shows the love and compassion that she embodies to serve the families and the needs of ASD. ”

Wendy Scarborough deserves to be recognized as our Hometown Hero on behalf of Romalis and Rashad Jasmine, who were diagnosed with ASD. At the beginning of our journey to find the right recreational activities outside school for the boys, I was introduced to Wendy, who played a very important role in our lives, as someone who kept us well informed about the available programs from Parks and Recreation. She is very understanding, patient, warmhearted, caring, and is very committed to serving the needs of all the children within the ASD community.

Numerous times when I was a bit late to enroll the boys in any of the programs, all I had to do was to pick up the phone and call Wendy to ask for help. Wendy always reassured me, “Don’t worry, Mrs. Jasmine; we have room for them in the program.” That statement warmed my heart to know that there was someone who really cares that much to allow my boys to have the opportunity to do something that I really feel that they would love and have a great time doing. She also understood the need to for the boys to be in the various programs that Parks and Recreation has to offer.

Wendy’s dedication and commitment shows the love and compassion that she embodies to serve the families and the needs of ASD. All the above exemplifies what a true Hometown Hero is. We would like to thank Wendy for playing such an important role in Romalis and Rashad’s physical and social development.
